Tut' 22: the life of Tutankhamun

22 Oct–18 March 2023

With this year marking the centenary of the discovery of the tomb of Tutankhamun in 1922 - 'the greatest archaeological discovery of all time' - Barnsley Museums are celebrating with a unique exhibition.

Curated by Barnsley-born Egyptologist Prof Joann Fletcher and over two years in the planning, 'Tut 22: the life of Tutankhamun' explores Tutankhamun's life during the C.14th BC and the local people involved in the rediscovery of the famous 'boy king'.

Focusing on Tutankhamun's birthplace at the city of Amarna, the exhibition features over 270 ancient artefacts, including some never displayed before. These are all being loaned by Bolton Museum's renowned Egyptian collection, first assembled by curators William and Thomas Midgley whose family came from Cawthorne, Barnsley. The exhibition also acknowledges the role of Barnsley-born artist-turned-archaeologist Harold Jones, whose excavations in the Valley of the Kings uncovered the first clues to the location of Tutankhamun's tomb which was eventually discovered by Jones' friends Lord Carnarvon and Howard Carter.

A Touring Exhibition from Barnsley Museums

This exclusively commissioned body of work by Kyte Photography, designed and curated by Professor Joann Fletcher, looks at the Egyptian inspired architecture found throughout Yorkshire. It reflects the West's enduring fascination with Egypt's ancient monuments, long regarded as the ultimate symbols of immortality, copied and constructed for centuries right across Europe.

Brains in a Dish brings immersive art+science installations to Barnsley Museums' Cooper Gallery and The Glass Works Digital Space. Artist Charlie Murphy and engineer Robin Bussell use digital tools and upcycled scientific glass to explore the pioneering dementia research of Prof. Selina Wray. They have developed an exciting array of robotic lasers, image projections and delicate glass sculptures to animate and illuminate our understandings of the brain.

Donating her own skin cells to Selina's research, Charlie has witnessed the extraordinary transformation of her cells into functioning brain cells grown 'in a dish'. Prof. Selina Wray grew up in Barnsley and now leads dementia research at University College, London using cutting edge technologies to investigate the underlying causes of dementias. Prof Wray is particularly interested in how a protein called 'Tau' builds up in the brain causing damage through diseases such as Alzheimer's and Frontotemporal dementia.

Further project collaborators include Dr Eric Hill (Aston University) and other scientists from UCL's Dementia Research Centre.

Charlie and the Brains team are offering a dynamic programme of creative activities for local community and schools' groups to learn about the brain, contribute to installations and learn about arts, science, technologies and dementia research. The project is funded by Alzheimer Research UK Inspire Fund and the National Lottery through Arts Council England.

Heritage Action Zone

The Eldon Street High Street Heritage Action Zone (HSHAZ) is a four-year partnership project between Barnsley Council and Historic England. The HSHAZ is helping to breathe new life back into Eldon Street in Barnsley town centre, helping to restore its beautiful old buildings and celebrate the stories that make Eldon Street so special.

Eldon Street is one of Barnsley's most important historic high streets. It was built in 1840 and quickly became home to houses, shops, theatres, a railway station, a grand public hall, a natural history museum and even a circus. It is still an important gateway to the town and has a multitude of stories and mythologies woven into its fabric. The HSHAZ is using creativity and culture to reawaken Eldon Street's sense of place and bring some love back to this important part of Barnsley town centre.

Visit some of the public art that has been supported by the scheme, including the World's first 'Tellapoem' box, in a classic red telephone box opposite the town hall; 'Sunset' a neon artwork in the alley next to the Civic (by artist Patrick Murphy using words by poet laureate Simon Armitage, written as part of his residency with the HSHAZ); and a bright and beautiful new street mural by artist Seanna Doonan, created in collaboration with the WE Great Ladies and Next Big Thing, a group of Barnsley young carers.
